HOGS PAY $1 PER BUSHEL FOR CORN

Atlanta, Jan. 2.—Corn growers in Georgia and throughout the south, according to farm experts here today, have found an indirect market for their crop, and instead of getting as low as 35 cents a bushel for their crop, they are promised a dollar a bushel and even more.

Selling corn through the medium of pork and beef provides this indirect, though highly profitable, market for the growers.

Farmers in the west, where large crops of corn are grown, experts here state, largely dispose of their crop in fattening cattle for the market, thus realizing on the corn several times as much as would be received in direct sales. Southern growers, it is pointed out, who have followed the western plan, have trebled the price of their corn and at the same time netted large profits on their cattle.

"Some of the farmers have overlooked their best opportunity and have been fooled into the idea that cotton will always sell at from 15 cents to 40 cents a pound," said an expert here today. "The cotton crop in Georgia was very short this year, due to unusual weather conditions and the boll weevil. On the other hand, corn is usually produced in Georgia under every sort of weather condition, as borne out by the production this year of the largest crop ever harvested."

Figures obtained here show that Georgia has produced in 1921 the largest corn crop ever harvested. The total yield is estimated to be 87,975,000 bushels, or an average of 15 bushels to the acre.

While many farmers have let their hogs gather part of their crop this fall rather than sell it at current prices, only a few of them have kept any accurate account of the results, it was stated at the agricultural department. Among these is J. W. Coleman, former chairman of the board of Colquitt county commissioners and one of the best known farmers near Moultrie.

Mr. Coleman's records to date reveal that by marketing his corn via the hog route, he has received more than $1 a bushel for it, against 40 cents, the price being paid for it on the moultrie market.

A few weeks ago he turned a bunch of hogs into a corn field that he estimated would yield 700 bushels, certainly no more than that. He sold 2,200 pounds, receiving for them $137.50. Afterwards he found that those left in the field represented a gain of 5,000 pounds. This 5,000-pound gain in weight, at 6 1/2 cents a pound, the price of hard hogs on the Moultrie market would represent $312.50.

Mr. Coleman estimates that not more than half of the 700 bushels of corn in the field has been eaten, and by the method of marketing it he has adopted, he has received $450 for the 350 bushels consumed. The hogs will be kept in the field until the corn is consumed. Mr. Coleman says the results of the test so far lead him to believe that he will certainly get more than $1 a bushel net for the corn.

Attention here today is called to the fact by agricultural leaders that the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railway, which runs through the richest farming section in Georgia, has taken an active part in the promotion of packing houses in Georgia and the increase in the production of hogs and cattle. Packing houses are located at Moultrie, Atlanta, Macon, Tifton, Waycross, Statesboro and Savannah, and at Jacksonville, Fla. These packing houses, it is stated here by cattlemen, have never received a sufficient volume of hogs and cattle to make them profitable, but it is hoped that the continued promotion of the beef cattle industry in Georgia will eventually show better results.

ADVERTISING CLUB HAD HOLIDAY DINNER

A most delightful occasion was that enjoyed by the members of the Statesboro Advertising Club and their families at the club dinner at Rimes' Cafe Thursday evening of last week. Besides the social feature, inspiring talks were made by A. J. Mooney, J. E. McCrone, R. W. T.

Grubbs, Max Baumgard and Secretary Pete Donaldson. In a happy speech of a few words, Dr. Mooney as spokesman for the club presented to Mr. Donaldson a cash purse as an expression of appreciation for faithful services rendered to the club.

BUSINESS GAINED DURING DECEMBER

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD ASSESSES HOLIDAY TRADE SHOWS INCREASE OVER LAST.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Continued upward movement of business and the gradual restoration of normal conditions are indicated in the comparison of reports of last month with those of the corresponding month of 1920, according to December review of the economic situation issued tonight by the federal reserve board.

Net improvement was found by the board despite the recession of business activity in December as compared with the same month last year.

"The holiday trade," the board said, "is a test of the soundness of preceding business activity. Reports from various federal districts covering half of the month show that this year's demand in the eastern districts has registered an increase running as high as 10 per cent of that of 1920, while in other districts the situation is pronounced satisfactory."

Manufacturing conditions, however, the board reported as far from uniform, there being a decrease of activity in the iron and steel industry, while textiles showed little change from previous months and uncertainty exists as to the future of the clothing industry, due to labor disturbances and the continued demand of consumers for lower prices.

"Freight rates," the board said, "continue as a disturbing factor, due to the belief that reductions already announced are affecting some commodities may be much more widely extended in the near future."

Relatively lower prices for cereals and cotton, the board continued, has discouraged trade in the agricultural districts and also had resulted in retarding the process of liquidating frozen loans. Hardware and related lines also was said to be in an unsatisfactory condition, but wholesale prices "are showing increased stability." Unemployment conditions were reported by the board as but little changed.

"A decided improvement in European exchanges," the board said, "has tended to some extent to help the foreign trade situation during the month of December, but the extreme caution in the extension of bank credits, which was previously so notable a phase of our foreign trade still continues. Export figures indicate a still further decline of activity in staples, while imports show an advance."

"Disturbed conditions in countries of Europe still render a maintenance of business relations with them uncertain and hazardous. Rates of interest which had already made a notable decline during the autumn have tended on the whole still further downward, partly owing to the fact that there was no foreign outlet for our capital."

Reviewing the year in the shipping industry the board declared that the "industry has been through a most difficult period, in which many of the weaker operators have been forced out of business and in which, as a result of greatly reduced freight rates, smaller available cargoes, and continued high cost of operation, very few companies have been able to make a satisfactory showing. This condition has been world-wide, although American companies have felt in special degree the handicap of a higher scale of wages than their foreign competitors have been obliged to pay."

AUSTIN MINCEY, JR.

Little Austin Mincey, Jr., the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Mincey, of Portal, died at the sanitarium Monday afternoon after an illness of one week with stomach trouble and pneumonia. Interment was at Portal cemetery, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. M. A. Shaw. The funeral was directed by Anderson, Waters & Brett, Inc.

EMANUEL FARMERS TO PRODUCE SWEET CREAM

ORGANIZE FOR CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING ON QUITE AN EXTENSIVE SCALE.

Swainsboro, Ga., Jan. 2.—C. G. Garner, county agent for Emanuel county, is trying to interest the people in shipping cream to the Augusta market for sale. The people of other counties are realizing good profits from their cows by concentrating their cream and shipping it through some one person to the nearest creamery.

Mr. Garner has agreed to do the shipping for this county temporarily in order to get the business started, after which some one in Swainsboro can be designated as shipping agent. It is believed that with the present scarcity of money our folks will take hold of this proposition and bring their cream in.

Mr. Garner, the county agent of Emanuel referred to in the foregoing article, was a guest at the dinner of the Statesboro Advertising Club Monday and gave the information that, as a result of the organization work which had been undertaken in the county, the farmers had become actively interested in the creamery proposition, with a view to shipment on the co-operative plan. He stated that approximately 300 quarts of cream per week had been subscribed through the club plan, and that only the necessary final preparation of plans are delaying the work in that county. This is given as a hint to our local creamery that there may be some sort of profitable arrangement made by which the shipment could be diverted to Statesboro instead of Augusta.

Machinery has been purchased for the local creamery and is expected within the next few days. It is hoped to have it installed and ready for operation by the latter part of the present month. Mr. Arthur Bunce who has had large experience in the dairy business in this county, and who while at school made a special study of that line of agriculture, will be in charge of the creamery, which will be located at the packing plant, which is now in full operation.

TO THE SCHOOL MA'AM.

"Dear Teacher:
"Please excuse Willie for being absent yesterday. He fell in the mud and wet his pants. By doing the same you will greatly oblige His Mother."

THE GREATEST BRIDGE IN THE WORLD--FAITH

(Appropriated from an exchange and applied to our own endeavors)

FAITH in ourselves is the only thing that will give us self-respect and demand our just rights.

FAITH in our fellowman is the tie that binds men together and makes them an invincible power for good.

FAITH in the community in which we live will produce an enlarged community interest spirit.

FAITH in the business in which we are engaged inspires us to use our best endeavor to make it a success.

FAITH is the bridge that has carried us safely over many deep chasms of business stagnation and worldly care.

FAITH is the inspiration that enables human beings to take up the golden thread of life and press onward and upward for the betterment of all.

FAITH is that power in man which enables him to endure everything because he believes better things and better days are coming.

FAITH is our greatest and most dependable asset, and with it we can make a Paradise of this beautiful and fertile country in which we live.

FAITH enables us to see the silver lining in every cloud and grasp the rainbow of hope.

FAITH is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.—Heb. 11:17.

Show me FAITH without thy works, and I will show thee my FAITH by my works.—James 2:9.

FAITH, O Lord, give us more FAITH and make us more FAITHFUL, hopeful and persistent in our endeavor to make Statesboro and Bulloch county ideal places in which to live and do business.

NEW COMMISSIONERS ASSUME THEIR DUTIES

KENNEDY IS CHOSEN CHAIRMAN OF BOARD AND RETAINS PRESIDENT STATUS AS HEAD.

At the meeting of the new board of county commissioners Monday, R. J. Kennedy was chosen as chairman and secretary of the board for the present year, retaining his present status as active head of the county's business affairs. His salary was fixed at $3,000 per year, which is approximately the same as he received during the past year.

Messrs. Cecil Gay and T. F. Lee are the new members of the board, having been selected as members by the October grand jury in conformity with the law enacted at the last session of the legislature. Mr. Gay is an enterprising and prosperous farmer from the Lockhart district, and Mr. Lee stands in similar position in the Brooklet district. They are heartily in sympathy with the manner of road improvement which has been pursued during the past year under Dr. Kennedy's sole management, and their best expression of that endorsement is found in their unanimous election of him as head of the board for the present year. Dr. Kennedy was named as sole commissioner by the act of the legislature in 1920 which changed the board membership from five to one. By the same act the salary was placed at $3,600 per year. During last year, following the downward trend of the cost of living, he voluntarily made a reduction of 15 per cent in his salary at the same time he made reductions of 10 per cent in the salaries of a number of other county employees. This 15 per cent reduction brought his salary to approximately the same figure at which it was placed by him and his colleagues at Monday's meeting.

The first regular business meeting of the board will be held on Tuesday, January 17th, the third Tuesday having been fixed by law as the monthly meeting date. At this time a number of important matters of business will come before the board.

From a personal contact with the members of the board while in session Monday, the Times editor feels impelled to express confidence that the people of the county will find themselves well served during the present year. Dr. Kennedy has already displayed the breadth of his vision as a public servant, and his services have been appreciated by the people of the county. The two new members are men of equal breadth, inspired by determination to advance in every possible manner the best interests of the county. Their success in private life has stamped them as fit men to entrust with public affairs. They will manage the business of the county with the same zealous care as they have their own business in the past.

ALL NEW POSTMASTERS MUST ATTEND SCHOOL

POSTMASTER GENERAL HAYES WILL GIVE LESSONS ON HOW TO MEET THE PUBLIC.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Beginning with the new year, under order issued today by Postmaster General Hayes, newly appointed postmasters will be required to attend school, where they will be taught among other things, how to meet the public, their places in the community, how through publicity to educate the public to use the mails, how to handle complaints, guard the mail, and maintain proper relationship with the department.

Central accounting postoffices will be designated in each state as schools for the instruction of postmasters of the second and third class under the direction of first assistant postmaster general work, as "superintendent of schools."

Newly appointed postmasters will be advised by letter that his city's welfare to a very great extent depends upon his willingness and capacity to impress upon the new official, that "he is local manager of the biggest business institution in the world. He will be required to write the department giving a review of what he had learned, so that it may be determined, Mr. Hayes said, whether he is qualified to service behind a placard reading:

"Ask your postmasters, when you want to know."

A IMPORTANT DEAL IN LOCAL BUSINESS CIRCLES

From the half-page announcement on another page, it will be noted that an important deal was consummated during the week when the newly-formed company of Anderson, Waters & Brett, Inc., purchased the retail business of Brooks Simmons Company.

The members of the new firm are all former employees of the Brooks Simmons Company, having held responsible positions with the company for many years. In taking over the business they are not strangers to the public, and will be in every way prepared to continue the service which has distinguished the Brooks Simmons Company in the past.

MOVES MONUMENT BUSINESS HERE FROM SAVANNAH

C. W. Brannen, proprietor of the Capital Monument Company which has been operated in Savannah for the past several years, has completed the transfer of his business to Statesboro, and is now established on West Main street, one block from the center of the city.

Mr. Brannen, who is a former citizen of Statesboro, began in the monument business at Columbia, S. C., ten years ago. A few years later he moved to Savannah and has been doing an extensive business throughout the entire section of the two adjoining states. Having just completed the erection of spacious work rooms at his location on West Main street, he will carry an extensive stock of marble and granite to meet all requirements, and will be able to take care of orders in his line in competition with other firms engaged in his line.

Statesboro is glad to have Mr. Brannen again as a business man.

RIMES HAS OYSTER ROAST FOR INVITED GUESTS

J. O. B. Rimes, of the Rimes Cafe, complimented a number of friends Monday evening at an oyster roast, at which were served a barrel of the choice bivalves. The genial host made himself active in roasting the oysters and delivering them steaming hot to a table where his friends did the rest.

PEOPLE TO DECIDE ON COUNTY AGENT

MEETING CALLED FOR NEXT MONDAY TO EXPRESS THE WISH OF THE PEOPLE.

The question of the employment of a county agricultural agent for Bulloch county, is to be submitted to the people for an expression at a mass meeting to be held in Statesboro Monday next at 12 o'clock.

The meeting is called with the hope that every farmer in the county who cares to express his preference for or against the employment of such an agent, may attend and permit himself to be heard. For some time there has been growing a sentiment that our farming interests could be served by such an agency. Because of the financial stress, the matter has been held in subjection. With the beginning of the new year, an opportunity is offered for the county to avail herself of the services of a good man upon a basis of substantial aid from the Federal government. The question is to be submitted to the board of county commissioners, for their action at an early date, and it is desired to have an expression from the people of the county who would be most directly served by such an agency—the farmers. While no expression has been had from the board members, it is recognized that they wish to render the best possible service to the people of the county during their term of office. If the people want the services of a county agent, there is little reason to doubt that they will get it.

There are many lines of effort along which the people are now in need of intelligent direction. The establishment of a creamery at Statesboro brings about the necessity of some united action among the farmers to avail themselves of the benefits it offers. The growing importance of the watermelon crop offers an important line for co-operative endeavor. The sweet potato crop is in need of some intelligent direction in order that it may bring the best possible benefits to the farmers. Co-operative hog marketing has been proven a success and calls for the hearty and intelligent leadership of somebody in position to give it time and thought.

There are many ways in which a county agent could aid the farmers in solving the problems which they must solve alone unless they are given help.

The progressive and successful counties of the state are those where every agency is brought to bear to give the best possible help in solving the farm problems. The question is not, Can Bulloch county afford to have one? It is rather, Can she afford not to have one?

The people are urged to be present at the meeting in the court house at noon next Monday—January 9th—and express their wishes in the matter.

BULLOCH TIMES

AND

DO WE NEED HELP?

Bulloch county is entirely an agricultural county. Upon this foundation, every other business within the county subsists. Therefore it is inevitable that whatever interests, be they of our farming interests, bears directly upon the welfare of every other interest.

And that is the reason every other line of industry is zealous that the farmers of the county should succeed—that they should do the very thing that is possible for themselves and their county.

We wonder if there is anything that could, even in a small measure, help the farming interests of the county, and thereby help the balance of us? We wonder if every farmer in Bulloch county is doing the best he is capable of for himself and the balance of us? We wonder if even those who are doing well, could in any measure be helped by anything that could be done for them through the assistance of others? We wonder if most of the farmers of Bulloch county could not be helped through the instrumentality of co-operative work? We wonder if those farmers who are depending upon the watermelon crop in the summer, and are in a measure dependent upon united effort in the marketing of their crop, could be served by any intelligent agency? We wonder if those farmers who are raising a few hogs and a few cattle for market, but have not the inclination nor opportunity to promote co-operative marketing systems, for their hogs and cattle, could be served through the leadership of some one who had the time and the ability to devote to such work? We wonder if the farmers of Bulloch county who grow potatoes and cane, and who find themselves at a loss for adequate markets when their crops are harvested, could be served through any agency which could be afforded them?

Could a county agricultural agent—one with vigor and foresight enough to take the initiative in such matters—be of any service to the farmers, and thus to the balance of our people? These are questions which the farmers are called upon to answer. If they believe they can be helped by such an agency, let them come to the mass meeting at the court house next Monday and express themselves.

DENYING FACTS.

A good friend of ours who hasn't any patience with the theory of Christian science, believes that denying a fact doesn't alter its existence. He contends that a man who denies the existence of sickness and death when all physical facts demonstrate their existence beyond any sort of cavil, is kidding to fairly foolish. He contends that no man with a real active gain in his "innards" can fool himself by denying it. He says that a man who would teach such doctrine is ready for the bug house and a fit subject for state aid. He thinks that a wise man, when he finds some disorder taking hold upon him will crawl under cover, conserve his energy, phone for the doctor, and put himself into their skillful hands and hope that he may pull through with the undertaker.

A good friend holds to the theory in the business world that panics are cultivated if not absolutely originated by the imagination. He believes that men can turn their faces forward and refuse to admit the presence of adverse business conditions, and the conditions will cease to exist. He believes that any man who admits the possibility of financial distress, is an evil prophet who should be consigned to a dungeon till optimists have restored the world to normalcy. He thinks it an easy matter to dissipate a business crisis by denying its existence. He believes that instead of submitting to financial illness, a real sensible man will continue to spend as if there was no such thing as a panic and no limit to his power to pay his obligations; that he ought to spend the more freely and trust to luck to keep him out of the sheriff's hands and pay his creditors.

To both these good friends may be one and the same man for aught we know. They are, so far as consistency is concerned, for we find this sort of contradictory theorizing abroad among people who wish to be considered middle class to fairly intelligent. We wonder if the theory of refutation will work in one case better than in the other? We wonder if a sick man can cure himself by denying his illness and restore his finances by denying illness, any better than a broke man his poverty? Fact is, we regard both propositions maddening to fairly foolish.

We recognize that during the recent past year it has seemed probable that the state of Georgia was on the verge of a wave of the hand or a nod of the head. It has been difficult to realize under recent conditions that business reverses could ever come. The man who prophesied it has found himself as lonely as old Noah when he sawed the ark. He has been a hundred years of the impending flood, and when it finally came walked into the ark with only his immediate family as converts to his preaching. The people all about Noah were optimists who didn't believe in floods because none had ever come upon them. They probably were not posted upon the theory of dissipating facts by denying their existence, but their practice was the same in principle. They said Noah was a pessimist and that there was no possibility of a flood. They changed their minds gradually when the rain began to fall, but were fully convinced before the forty days were over and the ark had again struck firm ground.

Likewise, during the past ripe harvest seasons there have been people in Bulloch county who have tried to wave aside the possibility of future stress. When their frugal neighbors warned them of the need of the economy, they scorned to heed the warning; they wanted no pessimist's counsel. With them today was the panic desirous of the farmers of Bulloch county could not be helped through the instrumentality of co-operative work? We wonder if those farmers who are depending upon the watermelon crop in the summer, and are in a measure dependent upon united effort in the marketing of their crop, could be served by any intelligent agency? We wonder if those farmers who are raising a few hogs and a few cattle for market, but have not the inclination nor opportunity to promote co-operative marketing systems, for their hogs and cattle, could be served through the leadership of some one who had the time and the ability to devote to such work? We wonder if the farmers of Bulloch county who grow potatoes and cane, and who find themselves at a loss for adequate markets when their crops are harvested, could be served through any agency which could be afforded them?

FORDS MADE OF COTTON.

Somebody has advanced the thought that Henry Ford is about to perfect a scheme for making automobiles from a composition mostly cotton, and Billy Sullivan of the Savannah Press ventures that it will only be a short time till a farmer can carry his load of seed cotton to the gin and drive away in a DeSoto. They have been doing that in Bulloch county for a long time; so long, in fact that the style is about passing out. Most of our cotton crop for the past several years has been converted directly or indirectly into automobiles and their accessories. The mule is coming back, however, and when a farmer carries his seed cotton to the gin now he rides away behind a jar-head, and much of his riding about his business is now done in the same way.

PRESIDENT WINBURN TALKS OF OUTLOOK FOR NEW YEAR

Reviewing transportation conditions of 1921, and discussing the outlook for 1922, President W. A. Winburn of the Central of Georgia Railway, has some very interesting things to say.

His point, out that although conditions last year were unsatisfactory, such may be expected as the aftermath of war, and do not indicate anything unsound or fundamentally wrong with the south.

He asserts that there are many encouraging features in the outlook for 1922, provided agriculture, commerce and industry adapt themselves to the demands of the times.

In line with the Central of Georgia's well-known policy of taking the public into its confidence, he is its the results of the past year in transportation, and the plans of railway management for the coming year.

Although railways in the south made less than two per cent upon their property investments, many rate reductions were made to shippers in this section, some of which Mr. Winburn enumerates. He calls attention to the savings to the public by the removal of the war tax on freight and passenger receipts; the ten per cent

BLIND MAN SEEKS RAILROAD JOB

McDONALD WANTS TO SUCCEED MURPHY Candler on RAILROAD COMMISSION.

Atlanta, Jan. 2.—Atlanta's streets are much more difficult for a blind man to travel than other cities, according to Walter R. McDonald, blind representative from Richmond county, who announced his candidacy for the state railroad commission while in Atlanta Monday.

"So many of the streets here have such funny turns," the candidate said, "that I wouldn't dare attempt to get about alone in Atlanta. It is remarkable when Paul Donehue walks around the maze of thoroughfares."

Although blind since early youth, Mr. McDonald, who will complete his third term as legislator from Richmond county this summer, will seek a position on the railroad commission, and will begin his campaign shortly.

Mr. McDonald graduated from the law college of the University of Georgia in 1914.

Members of the railroad commission are elected from the state at large for terms of two years each.

OHIO TOWN NEWS

SPECTACULAR TO FEAR

ELECTED ON A SENSATIONAL PLATFORM HE TONES DOWN AFTER ELECTION IS PAST.

Youngstown, O., Jan. 2.—George L. Oles, Youngstown's spectacular mayor-elect, arriving home recently from a vacation in Florida, ready, he said, to "clean up the city," and "fire anyone who doesn't obey his orders."

He took office yesterday.

Oles made political history here by running as an independent candidate, defeating the republican incumbent by over 500 votes and the democratic candidate by over 5,000. The city auditor received a request from Oles in Florida asking for a "thorough invoice" of the city, "just as if I were going to buy it."

"I want to know how much money the city of Youngstown owes," he wrote, "whom they owe it to and when it is due. I want to know who owes the city of Youngstown. I want to know where the money is coming from to pay the bills. I want to know what stock we have on hand, such as horse feed and supplies, gasoline in the tanks, stationery and ink and lead pencils, also the amount of coal—and don't forget to state the amount of cash in the bank."

Shortly after taking the building Mayor Fred J. Wapack, defeated for election, issued a 2,000 word statement citing court decisions in an effort to show that Oles' promise to give his salary to charity constituted a bribe to the poor, and thereby disqualified him. Petitions to the courts were prepared, but were dropped and no contest now is in sight.

Oles went into the produce business, in New Castle, Pa., 20 years ago, with a wheelbarrow and a barrel of potatoes as his sole stock in trade. After he had built up a flourishing business there in five years time he sold it to start a market in Youngstown. He ran on what he called a psychological principle. Oles began presenting eccentric newspaper advertising base, he said, on Billy Sunley's evangelistic tactics, which he had seen in the papers.

Oles' campaign was a success. He won on what he called a psychological principle. Oles began presenting eccentric newspaper advertising base, he said, on Billy Sunley's evangelistic tactics, which he had seen in the papers.

WATSON ANNOUNCES BREAK WITH HARDWICK

LONG EXPECTED RUPTURE BETWEEN TWO STATESMEN ANNOUNCED IN SENTINEL.

The following, under the heading, "Personal, Specific and Final," appeared in the Columbia Sentinel, Senator Thos. E. Watson's paper published at Thomson, bearing date Monday, January 9th. Mr. Watson says:

It is about time that I was saying something definite about T. W. Hardwick and L. Phillips.

I am now going to say it.

It would not perhaps become me to speak of the forlorn condition in which Hardwick found himself at the end of his term in the senate.

Most people in Georgia can remember how down and out he was.

President Wilson had not allowed him to dictate in all matters of Georgia patronage, and he had turned against his president.

At that time J. L. Phillips was not a resident of Georgia, not a taxpayer, and not a voter.

Neither Hardwick nor Phillips voted for Harding.

And Phillips did not vote for Hardwick.

If either Hardwick or Phillips paid any 1920 taxes in Georgia, I would like to know the amount, and the place where paid.

I invite information on that subject.

Never did any candidate for office make more promises than Hardwick made in the campaign of 1920.

Never did a governor elected on unqualified promises, go back on them so quickly after his inauguration.

Hardwick worked against the repeal of the infamous tax assessment law; threatened to veto a repeal of it, and thus kill the repeal bill.

Had he not promised the people just the reverse of this, he could not have been elected.

Other pledges, equally positive and specific, have been broken; and Hardwick has done things which prove that his whole campaign was one of misrepresentation and comprehensive deception.

His betrayal of our state railroad to the Louisville & Nashville, is the most perfidious official act since the Yaxoo Fraud.

His appeal of the act which devoted half the rental of the road to the education of the children, would seem to prove that he had control of the legislature.

Half a million of your money has been thrown to lawyers and to the fiscal agent of the L. & N. system.

There was no money for free elementary school books, but there was plenty for the L. & N. banks, and for the special attorneys who steered the sham law suit.

The sacrifice of the state's best property was considered such a fine bit of statesmanship, that a picture had to be taken of the papers in the act of signing the Harvard.

This picture ought to be cut out of the Atlanta Journal and saved for future inspection.

Somebody ought now to photograph the new broom.

It is sweeping fast enough, but it is sweeping away your best assets—property which the people of Georgia had come to regard as sacred.

Your state road is gone; your state mansion will go next.

Your taxes have not been lowered; useless offices have not been abolished; no safe program of constructive legislation has been uttered.

Useless offices have been retained; and useless men put into them.

No Watson men have been recognized as fit to hold places of real importance.

Watson's friends were good enough as voters, but not good enough to hold office.

And who is J. L. Phillips?

He was born in Columbus, but has lived in other states, and now lives in Pennsylvania.

He was a profiteer during the war and afterwards, selling lumber to the government.

Invite him to state how much lumber, and how much the price, how much the profit and how he disposed of the money.

He paid no taxes in Georgia, and was not a registered voter, until January, 1921.

Therefore he did not vote the Republican ticket, or any other.

I flung this into his face, in my office, and he could not deny it.

Yet, his bossing the patronage in Georgia, with the assistance of Hardwick.

That is, he thinks he is.

He is going to learn better.

The Georgia delegation in congress do not intend to submit to the dictation of Hardwick and Phillips.

In saying so, I am saying no more than I told Phillips to his face.

I told Phillips, that he is a carpet-bagger! and of course, he denied it; but I have the facts on J. L. P.

He is a carpet-bagger, living in Philadelphia and handling out offices in Georgia.

He is not a Georgian by residence, blood, or sympathy.

He doesn't contribute a cent to the paying of the state's expenses.

He boards at the most expensive hotels, has an office in New York, another at 1002 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and a third in the Candler building, Atlanta.

He presents the appearance of a moneyed man, everywhere except on the books of tax receivers.

He seems to possess everything he wants; but, apparently, he does not want a tax receipt.

I wonder whether he and Hardwick could put Bishop Kelley's man, Curran, into the Savannah postoffice?

Well, he can't.

Curran's nomination is not going to be confirmed.

Phillips said the bishop can put this statement in their pipes and smoke it.

Curran said that I ought to be lynched!

Curran had better be careful how he talks about me hereafter, else some of my friends may give him what he deserves.

He will not get the P. O. in Savannah nor will Denny get the Customs House.
